

MUSICAL DIRECTOR ANDY SCOTT

Andy's background is in brass and military bands and he served 22 years as a professional musician with the Royal Air Force, serving in the Central band, Regiment band and College band throughout his career, which took him all around the world.

His time with the RAF came to an end in 2016 while posted to RAF Cranwell in Lincolnshire. He is also a member of the Salvation Army and has always been a member of the band at whatever SA corps he's been at.

At present he is still principal euphonium with Salvo Brass but is able to merge the two positions successfully, retaining his playing and very much enjoying his position as Musical Director with Kirton Brass Band along with the challenges that brings after a long and enforced period of downtime.

He is also one of the instructors with the National Air Cadets Wind Band that meet throughout the year and is part of a successful team there.
